Birds which spend summer in the higher reaches of mountains come down during the winter to the lower foothills or even the plains. This is very common in India where the mighty Himalayas lie close to the Indo-Gangetic plain. Birds are punctual too unless they are delayed by bad weather. We may calculate almost to a day when we may expect our bird friends to return, carrying winter on their backs. Some birds make the long journey in easy stages, stopping to rest on the way. Others fly great distances without pausing to rest and feed some fly by day. Some both by day and by night, but most of them speed on their way through darkness after the sun has set.

Questions :

- (1) Where the common birds in India do during winter ?
- (2) When the birds makes their long Journey ?
- (3) Why the birds get delayed in their migration ?
- (4) Where the birds spend summer ?
- (5) Give a suitable title to the above passage.
